3rd Party Damage
What do you do?

For the purposes of this plan, an emergency shall be regarded as any incident, report, etc. which requires the immediate response of a Company gas employee. Examples of emergency situations include: customer leak complaints, fires, explosions, leakage or damage to a facility or loss of service. Once a situation is determined to be an emergency, the necessary people and resources should be directed to the location to take whatever steps necessary to eliminate the emergency. The actions of the superintendent and all utility employees in any emergency shall be intended to protect people first and property second.
